"Fighting Parson" Has Delivered 20,000 Speeches After America Entered Struggle.

R. J. Jones, former minister and chaplain in various connections and now in Tulsa for the purpose of spreading interest in the Salvation Army drive being conducted here, is an Army worker who is recognized not only all over America but also throughout Europe as a lecturer and speaker of ability.

The distinguished speaker is known throughout the world as Chaplain Jones and as such he has served increasingly as a special representative of the Salvation Army ever since the war.

Chaplain Jones was a Congregational minister at one time, served as chaplain to the H. P. O. Elks Lodge of New York and in like manner in 14 different battleships.

At the time America entered the war he was engaged in special propaganda work for the government and it was his special duty to refute the statements of German propagandists. Shortly after war was declared his son enlisted and soon was in France. It was the letters of young Jones, telling of the great work abroad of the Salvation Army, which persuaded Chaplain Jones to enter the work.

Since then his acceptance into the service has sent to France, where he later met his son who had been severely wounded in action. In France and Germany Jones addressed 500,000 men converted $20,000 to the government and spoke to soldiers from five to 15 times daily. He estimates he has delivered 20,000 speeches since entering war work and states he has visited every camp of importance of Americans in France and Germany.

Chaplain Jones is a national figure in the organization of Elks and assumed the finding up the various chapters in favor of the Salvation Army cause. He represented the Salvation Army at the great mass meeting of soldiers held in Palais de la Paix, Champ Elysees Paris, on January 15, 1919, at which the Comrades in Service society, which later developed into the American Legion, was organized.

Chaplain Jones leaves Tulsa today for Okmulgee, where he is to meet a drive. He speaks today at the general speaker last night at the meeting of members of Joe Carson's American Legion.

Reading a copy of the latest edition of "The Evening World," while seated on the top of the flag pole at the Exchange National bank building, will be the climax of the exhibition to be staged here at 8:15 tonight by Bill Brothers, the world champion wall sealer, who is in Tulsa after completing a series of climbing exhibitions for the benefit of the Red Cross, Red Cross, and other patriotic drives.

"The human spider," by which title Mr. Brothers is known throughout the nation, not only climbs 20 and 30 story buildings with his hands and toes, but rides around the edge of the roof on a bicycle, and performs hair-raising acrobatic stunts on the edges of the cornices.

"You have a wonderful city here," said Mr. Bill, who manages the business end of "the human spider's" performances. "We have worked on the skylines of the principal cities of the country, but we have never seen anything like Tulsa. Have we?"

"No, I am afraid I am going to fail for this place," replied the "spider."

MID-CO LOSES 55,000 BARREL TANK BY FIRE

Fifty-five thousand barrels of asphalt oil was destroyed by fire last night. The oil was set afire by lightning during a late afternoon wind and rain storm. The oil was the property of the Mid-Co company and was in storage on the company's tank farm about three miles west of Tulsa.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Investigation by a congressional committee of the Mexican situation from 1910 to the present time is proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Gould, republican of New York. Members of the cabinet and others would be required to testify under oath and the committee would have power to meet in Mexico or elsewhere.

TULSA MILK MUST BE PURE, INSPECTOR SAYS

Mr. Mullin, of State Health Department is here to see that Tulsa does "what they order."

Milk and all products of which milk is a part must be pure—absolutely and unquestionable pure.

And it is to see that milk sold in Tulsa is just that that O. P. Mullin, state dairy commissioner came to Tulsa yesterday from Oklahoma City. His first official act toward determining the quality of milk now being dispensed in Tulsa was to collect a few samples of ice cream from various dairy stores. The city health department will test the city health department will test the samples and if any of them do not show at least ten per cent butter fat somebody will be due for some final action. That's what Mullin is here for.

All milk sold must be pasteurized by the distributing agencies before sold to customers, and milk sold in a restaurant must be in a bottle with the "stopper" in and those bottles must be washed more often as the milk is removed, more so as the state health department regulations that must be met.

Mr. Mullin said that it had been brought to his attention that Tulsa restauranteurs persisted in selling milk "over the counter" in "bulk form." He called attention to the fact that there is a city ordinance and a state law against such practices. They will be enforced, he says.

It is understood that all Tulsa distributing agencies with one exception have pasteurization equipment as a part of their plants. The one delinquent is said to have equipment now on the way which will meet with the legal requirements.

Talking about the bottles with the "stoppers" in, Mr. Mullin said that the manager of the distributing agency must be printed on the little pasteboard stoppers.

It is likely that the state inspector will be here for several days.

ARKANSAS ASKS FOR STARR ON OLD CHARGE

Friends of Reformed Bank Bandit Believe Governor Robertson Will Refuse Extradition.

Application for extradition of Henry Starr, the alleged bandit who is wanted in Arkansas for robbery of a bank 21 years ago, was made to Governor J. B. A. Robertson yesterday by the Arkansas authorities, according to cables received from Oklahoma City.

Starr was arrested last week by the county officials following communications from Sheriff and Justice of Bentonville, that he was in for robbery of a bank there and to both him and his extradition papers could be obtained from Oklahoma.

Starr was released on his own recognizance by the county officials after he had made the promise that he would not run off and would keep in touch with the officers every day.

The many friends of Starr say they will use every possible means to prevent the papers from being taken out. This is the opinion that the governor will refuse to issue the necessary warrant. Thus, the third trial Arkansas officials have applied for extradition papers and each time they have been refused, say Starr's friends.

Seven Pound Boy for Present.

Dr. Paul J. Brown, who graduated at the Kansas City Dental school, Kansas City, Mo., May 31, was presented with a handsome graduating present when he arrived home yesterday morning, a seven pound baby boy.

I thought I might my graduating diploma highly, but it is not compared with the baby boy present," said Dr. Brown, who lives at 429 South Cheyenne.

18 Soldiers Get Jobs.

Eighteen returned soldiers were provided with jobs yesterday by the Y. M. C. A. employment bureau, five of whom were given splendid paying positions in the new oil fields near Wichita Falls, Texas.

Don't be fooled by bunk about the Ozark club wanting to build a lake. True, some members of the club are rich, but they are not crooks, and because of their wealth would pay more for the Spavinaw project in building their share of the taxes than it would cost to build the dam themselves.

It is understood that all Tulsa distributing agencies with one exception have pasteurization equipment as a part of their plants. The one delinquent is said to have equipment now on the way which will meet with the legal requirements.
